

The first stars appear, expanding and collapsing into themselves, forming elements necessary for life.

One billion years later

This process continues, creating a trillion galaxies each with billions of stars.

